Introduction

This directory is an attempt to describe the library resources of Saskatchewan libraries, up-dating the 1981 edition. The directory is a listing of the public and regional libraries, school libraries, college and university libraries and special libraries in the province of Saskatchewan. It also provides some other relevant information for librarians, such as library schools in Canada, provincial and national library associations in Canada, provincial libraries in Canada, and the list of Saskatchewan publishers. The directory includes various indexes; libraries by name, college and university libraries, public and regional libraries, special libraries and government libraries.

General arrangement

The directory is divided in three sections. Section one consists of Saskatchewan libraries arranged geographically by city or town, and under each city or town, alphabetically by name. All branch libraries of city and regional libraries are listed under the libraries of which they are a part. Space limitations do not permit cross references from town-to-town from branches located in places different from the place of the main library. Each entry in the directory is classified by a symbol, or symbols. For an explanation see the key to the symbols on page iii. Section two consists of various indexes and section three some general information for librarians.

Information details

In most cases the entry contains the following information:

- name of sponsoring organization and name of library, including address, postal code and date of establishment;
- telephone, telex, Envoy 100 (Electronic mail), TWX numbers (if any);
- person in charge and title of person in charge;
- collection — number of books, periodicals or audio visual material;
- subject interest and special collections;
- special services provided by the library;
- publications (if any); and
- branch libraries.

Sources of information used

Questionnaires were sent to every library listed in the directory. The questionnaires returned were the main source for the information given in the directory. In cases where the original questionnaire or follow-up requests were unanswered, information from other sources, such as library directories, reference books and telephone directories, was used.

Provincial Library staff is grateful to all Saskatchewan libraries for their generous help in supplying information either through questionnaires or through telephone contacts, and to individuals and organizations who have assisted in the task of compiling this directory.
In a compilation of this nature there are bound to be some errors and omissions which should be brought to the attention of the Provincial Library by filing Notification of Change Form which is included in your copy of the directory.

Libraries wishing to be included in this directory should contact — Ved Arora, Director of Bibliographic Services at the Provincial Library for more information.
